Stories come to life

Sunday 27 July – Sunday 3 August

This is your chance to meet and talk with people from our community who have a story to tell. Living Books are people. Borrow them for half an hour, sit in our specially designed “chat café” at the LibraryMuseum and have a conversation about their special topic. Come by yourself, come with a friend or come as a group.

THE BOOKS

Gordon Ask Gordon about his inspiration and processes that have led to his contemporary classical compositions being performed, recorded and recognised throughout Australia, the UK and Europe.

Heather Come and hear Heather’s story of surviving breast cancer, supporting and fundraising and the tale of the 22 foot long Brave Hearts dragon boat.

David Come and ask Professor David anything you ever wanted to know about the native habitats and behaviours of birds, animals and plants.

Jan Talk to Jan about a retirement project that included a local history book published in 2007. ‘Building the Neighbourhood- Central North Albury 1920-1950’

Craig Craig has many yarns to tell. From ancient Wiradjuri stories to tales from his varied experiences in teaching, social work, travel, shearing, Koorie Court, Aboriginal health and AFL Umpiring.

Jan Been There Done That: Being Gay- The Good Bad Ugly Indifferent Mardi Gras to the Grim Reaper Young gay to older gay and everywhere in between A ghost wearing the cloak and mask

Olwen Olwen is/has been a lifelong nomad, military policewoman, survivor, artist’s life model, teacher and learner, poet, collector of sayings, actor, recipient of fantastic good fortune, singer, tour guide, culture vulture and full time person ...amongst other things.
